

Two decorated eggs on show in London 'missing'

On 25 February, 2012, in Entertainment News, by Misc. Contributors

25 February 2012 Last updated at 18:59 The Egg Letter Box on Carnaby Street has been reported missing Two decorated fibreglass eggs that went on display earlier this week to raise money for charity have gone missing. Action for Children and Elephant Family said the eggs, two of 200 in London, were reported missing on [...]

25 February 2012

Last updated at 18:59

The Egg Letter Box on Carnaby Street has been reported missing

Two decorated fibreglass eggs that went on display earlier this week to raise money for charity have gone missing.

Action for Children and Elephant Family said the eggs, two of 200 in London, were reported missing on Saturday.

One was the Egg Letter Box by designer Benjamin Shine, which was on Carnaby Street, and the other, Hatch, was designed by artist Natasha Law.

Police said they had received a report about two men removing an ornamental egg from New Bond Street.

The 2ft 6in (74cm) eggs have been designed by celebrities, including film director Sir Ridley Scott.